TWO IF BY SEA (BISCUIT)

BREGUET'S MARINE ROYALE TIMEPIECE
EARLY SERVES DUAL PURPOSE FOR LAND-
LOCKED, SEABISCUIT-RIDING ESCAPADES
OR MARITIME ADVENTURES.

By Jonathan Ho I can attest from personal experience that there's no greater pleasure than to feel the breeze rush against your face either accompanied with a little salty spray or by virtue of extreme torque from rapid acceleration, even if boats horsepower of one. Perhaps similarly, Breguet finds equal pleasure in decorating every inch of what is meant to be a timepiece of simple utility because it shows.

The marine 18K rose gold timepiece with sporty rubber strap is built like an indestructible tool watch but decorated in the same vein as a classic Breguet chronograph. Endorsed Breguet timing can be found on the midcase and the solidly constructed bezel. The water level between the winding crown at 3 and alarm setting crown at 4, serves to secure the date time indicator in place while the alarm switch is located at 6 in a slender wave shape. I mention this because while the watch isn't exactly oversized (case measures at 45mm), it appears that way thanks to the crown and push pieces on the flange as the case follows the piece with immense wrist presence.

The watchmakers did forego traditional Breguet-style case engine were "pullochi" patterns which add elegant charm to what is meant to be purely a functional tool watch (and for 18K rose divers and the ability to alert you to whatever time you have seen fit to set).

Yet, even with no shortage of useful details, it is the automatic Breguet caliber 519 Q, which surprises me. The supple crystal caseback shows of an exquisitely decorated rotor and a movement plate planing with patina, never have I seen a more beautiful movement in a diver's watch.
